Dan Curtin was a great land use attorney - the father of the Subdivision Map Act - who wrote the definitive book about California land use law. The book was always easy to read as well as completely accurate. As a planning commissioner, I loved having such a wonderful resource to help with understanding the legal environment of land use decisions. Cecily Barclay has continued the tradition of this definitive source for understanding this complex area of California law. She is a renowned attorney with a talent for clear, concise, and understandable writing. Ms. Barclay's book is a must-have resource for all attorneys, planning staff, planning commissioners, and developers who want to understand California's land use law. I am very grateful that Ms. Barclay has chosen to continue the work of this book. Dan Curtin would be proud of her version of his book.
