The 5 topical sessions with illustrative special projects are: Beginning the Journey Running with the Herd Ready for an Upgrade? Destination: L Pure Crossing the Date Line The Travel Journal, FamilyLife Publishing Product # WKB16610, includes 25 follow-up devotions on purity.

We got this journal for my 2nd son. We already had the full kit that was used for my 1st son and now it's time for #2 to spend time with dad and the Passport to Purity program. It's an amazing program and so wonderful to make the experience easy for dad and son. When you want to make sure you're teaching your kids the important lessons and knowledge of life you got one chance to get it right the 1st time. P2P is a great guide for the parent to teach your child about growing up, changes in boys and girls, adulthood, peer pressure and love. All the lessons are there so you won't forget to touch on an important subject with activities that go with the lesson for easy understanding through a teens mind. At the end there is a letter to be written by the parent and even though I did not go through the experience with my son I choose to write a letter to him (and will for #2). He got 2 letters from his parents after sharing the bonding and educating weekend with dad. They went out of town for the father/son weekend and at the end we gave him a gift of a dog tag cross with a bible verse engraved on it. It was the special gift for him to remember the educational weekend with dad.

This is not compatible with the earlier set. I purchased as a replacement and found it not to be useable. took it in return. Good thing I reviewed it before spending a frustrating weekend trying to use it. I sure wish this was posted somewhere on the description.

This journal is the accompaniment to the new 2012 revision of P2P. Exactly what I needed since the P2P kit comes with only one journal, and I needed another for my second daughter.

There are a couple of object lessons that just don't work. One is "lighting a match". You have the child light a match and blow it out. Then they try to light it again, and of course it doesn't work. Obvious object lesson here about virginity. You can only light that match one time. Then they have the child get another match wet, and try to use it as an object lesson in how God can help you keep your purity. I say that sounds like you can go almost all the way, up until lighting the match, and God will protect you. Hogwash. I say "KEEP THE D--N MATCH IN THE BOX IN THE FIRST PLACE!"]

Did with all 4 of my kids, 2 daughter then 2 sons. I would recommend the next time they record it they make the mentor part more generic because when they refer to "your dad" in the recordings for the boys, it was not their dad, and that made ME uncomfortable, as I wasn't their dad, though that would have been nice and better, but not our reality. I'm guessing that was probably painful for my boys, as well. It was also difficult as their dad is not living a life of integrity or sexual purity. They could say, "your P2P mentor" or something more generic - this would make it more user friendly so grandparents, possibly youth leaders, of anyone other than the girls' mom or the boys' dad doing it with them would fit. I also preferred the dirty water illustration over the playdoh one because the playdoh was very distracting and ended up taking a lot more time. My girls and boys liked the dorky songs, though they were the "new and improved" version for the boys. I think the illustrations are fabulous. I so wish I'd had this when I was a teen. My daughter's are committed to purity. Praying my sons will be committed to it as well.

This is a replacement journal, likely to be used for siblings when you have already purchased and used the Passport2Purity kit for an older sibling. The kit itself is wonderful and has been a great tool for helping my husband and I to communicate to our girls, our hopes and expectations of them dating. Be warned - this is the new version of this kit. I was able to use it with our old kit, but I think it would have been best to have the updated CDs to listen to and follow along with. We were able to adapt it with our old projects, but I'm curious to know what we missed. I'll definitely purchase the updated kit in a year to use again with daughter #3!

Ridiculous that this does not match the older set...that's an easy thing to state in the description, why is that not listed somewhere. What a total waste of money.

EXCELLENT!! 2nd time doing this cd material with my children. Would DEFINITELY recommend as a must do, once in a lifetime opportunity, not to be missed for any parent of a teen or pre teen. (This is a replacement journal, you would need to buy the cd set and instruction book from Family Life. (it gives a tentative schedule to follow for your time together with your teen, as well as exact instructions on what to do to prepare, what to get, what to say, etc.)
