Customer Reviews

These new books in the Community Connections: What Should I Do? series focus on safety in a variety of everyday and extraordinary situations. The large text, clean layout, and action-oriented photos, most of which feature relatable children, make the books engaging and inviting for younger kids and beginning readers. Just be advised that certain second-person scenarios (warning that the reader could get hurt, suffocated, or drowned) may be frightening to some readers. If There Is a Fire presents well-known, simple fire safety suggestions but also presents the potentially scary situation of being trapped inside a burning house. The books'™ back matter includes a one-page glossary, which defines boldface words in the text; one page of selected books and websites to "Find Out More"; and a one-page index. Preschool-Grade 2. --Miriam Aronin

We use this book to teach fire safety education to 4th and 5th graders. It has been very well received.
