

The book was found

Cajun Cuisine: Authentic Cajun Recipes From Louisiana's Bayou Country

Synopsis

Cajun Cuisine is a carefully selected compilation of totally authentic cajun recipes screened by several career cajun home economists for authenticity and quality. It was compiled by W. Thomas Angers, a member of a second generation Louisiana publishing family. The introduction was written by Marie Louise Comeaux, the worlds leading authority on cajun cuisine, and contains critical information on the origins and component parts of authentic cajun food. The title includes Louisiana classics including gumbos, jambalayas, bisques, fricassees, etoufees, sauce piquantes, wild game, seafood and much more. An extraordinary effort was made to identify and publish truly authentic and tasty cajun recipes so the world would know the real thing.

Book Information

Hardcover: 224 pages

Publisher: Beau Bayou Pub Co; First Edition edition (October 1, 1985)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 0935619003

ISBN-13: 978-0935619003

Product Dimensions: 9.5 x 7.8 x 0.9 inches

Shipping Weight: 1.2 pounds (View shipping rates and policies)

Average Customer Review: 4.5 out of 5 stars 47 customer reviews

Best Sellers Rank: #584,870 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #116 in Books > Cookbooks, Food & Wine > Regional & International > U.S. Regional > Cajun & Creole

Customer Reviews

The magic and mystique behind Louisiana's Cajun (or Acadian) cuisine are completely revealed in this collection of recipes from the heart of Cajun Country: the bayous of southern Louisiana. In her introduction to Cajun Cuisine, third-generation Acadian Marie Louise Comeaux Manuel writes, "Acadian (Cajun) Cuisine is a recipe in itself. For ingredients, take the classical French cuisine, combine it with Spanish classical cuisine, blend well, take herbs and spices from France and Spain and sometimes couple with seasoning learned from the Choctaws and Chickasaws. Then be sure to add the ingenuity, the creativity and the keen taste of the refugee Acadians.... Now, add the exotic taste and magic seasoning of the African cook. Voila! This is Acadian cuisine." The differences between Cajun and Creole cuisines are explained (the Creole cuisine of New Orleans is fattier and more highly seasoned), then the home cook is treated to more than 200 recipes, from breakfast to dessert, designed to bring forth the bayou. Favorites such as fried okra and Maque Choux are represented, as well as 11 different gumbos (even one with squirrel!) and seven recipes for Jambalaya. There's a recipe for Alligator Stew, plus two ways to prepare frog legs, and the book closes with a generous dessert section, which naturally includes Pecan Pralines and Tarte À la Bouillie, a classic Cajun custard pie. The recipes are simple and straightforward and have clearly been tested in homes for the past couple of centuries--no processors or microwaves need apply; all you need is a sharp knife and a big iron pan. Put some Zydeco music on the stereo, fry up some oysters, and let the good times roll!

W. Thomas Angers, is a Lafayette Louisiana author, publisher and attorney. He first became interested in cajun cuisine when he worked for his family's magazine, Acadiana Profile Magazine, a regional magazine about Louisianas' cajun country. It is there that he first became acquainted with the writings of Marie Louise Comeaux Manuel, director emeritus of the School of Home Economics at the then University of Southwestern Louisiana, situated in the heart of cajun country. Her article on the origins and nature and component parts of cajun cooking is the most scholarly and informed on the subject. Mrs. Comeaux-Manuel became a consultant on the production of the book and the article became a component of the book. Mr. Angers published this book in response to a perception that so many were seeking to know and understand what comprises authentic cajun cuisine and to fulfill that need.

No real home made food in Virginia, too bland. I should paid attention when my Louisiana native Mom was cooking, now this Texas native can have the taste of home again. So far, so goooooood, recipes. And my Virginia neighbors will be jealous.

Bought this for my mother when it first came out in '86. Have tried to get it away from her ever since, so I just got my own copy. I'm from Louisiana and these recipes will have you cooking like a native-straightforward, simple recipes, which is how Cajun should be done.

i had this book years ago and lost it.. It has some great recipes.. my only negative about it was that the book came with some damaged pages.

Have not made any recipes yet but have many marked with post-its!The approach to the recipes seems very laid back and "forgiving"....just my style!! also found the introduction fun and informative!

`Cajun Cuisine', published by the very local Louisiana publishing house, Beau Bayou Publishing Company, and with no clearly discernible author, may be the publishing analogue to what in the culinary world is called `rustic' or in the pharmaceutical world, `generic'. Aside from a fairly nicely composed cover photograph of all sorts of raw and prepared Louisiana victuals, there are no frills and only one `pretension', in the form of a semi-scholarly introductory essay on `Arcadian (Cajun) Cuisine' by the retired Director, School of Home Economics, University of Southwestern Louisiana, Marie Louise Comeaux Manual. While this author's credentials are `academic', her essay is not terribly scholarly, as it is poorly written. It does, however, do a decent job of adding some material to our understanding of `Cajun' cooking. Most foodies know that there is a `Cajun' and a `Creole' cuisine, which seem to coexist in and around Louisiana, centered in New Orleans. The problem is that I suspect few food enthusiasts who have not studied the matter can make a clear statement of the difference between the two. It seems as if the classic dishes of the area such as gumbo and jambalaya, as well as a foundation in French cooking techniques are claimed by both heritages. According to the `Oxford Encyclopedia of American Food and Drink', the two cuisines are very similar, and the main distinctions that source can make between the two is that `Creole' is an urban cuisine originating with the earliest Spanish settlers from the 17th century and that `Cajun' (from Arcadian), is a rural cuisine deriving from the French immigrants from Nova Scotia in the late 18th century, after being kicked out by the English following the French and Indian Wars (That little opening act for the American Revolution). And, while both cuisines claim gumbo and jambalaya, etouffee and its principle ingredient, crawfish, seems to be distinctly `Cajun'. A second culinary difference is the greater extent of French influence from Arcadia, a purely French colony. This influence can be seen in the fact that Cajun cooking values balanced, but varied seasoning. It's `signature' cooking technique is braising, which is straight out of the French provincial cooking playbook. This is ironic because `Cajun' cuisine is often associated with very spicy foods; however, much of this `heat' was probably added a scant 25 years ago by the famous Paul Prudhomme of New Orleans, who, I believe, virtually invented the `blackened' cooking technique, most famous with `blackened catfish'. But getting back to this book, my initially cool impression made by the somewhat pretentious introduction was redeemed when I started looking at the recipes. All the recipes are written in a very economical style, with crisp ingredients lists and matter of fact descriptions of procedure. The writing is not the minimalist sparse writing of Elizabeth David in `A Book of Mediterranean Food', but it has few if any `trucs', tips, hints, sidebars, or other accoutrements of modern cookbook writing. And, it has none of the scholarly observations on origins or variations also found in Ms. David's works. For an experienced cook, this may be a very good thing. It means we have 'just the facts, ma'm'. So, an experienced cook can be on their way to reproducing the dishes and fill in the extras where needed. One place a modern cook will especially wish to fill in is in replacing 'oleo' with either real butter or a less saturated vegetable oil. In the mid-1980's, we had not heard all the dangers of trans-fats, commonly found in common margarine (oleomargarine). One advantage of the sparse recipe writing style is that the slim 222 page book can contain a very healthy number of recipes, probably numbering close to 250, if you include the supplementary recipes for dressings, sauces, and condiments. And, this healthy number of recipes seems to cover the full range of 'Cajun' specialities. The very best thing is that those classic dishes such as gumbo, jambalaya, and etouffee are represented by several variations. From there, it goes all the way from fried oysters to boudon to beignets. I did find some famous preparations missing, such as coffee with chicory, 'poor boy' sandwiches, and 'mouffelata' (sic) sandwiches, but as none of these are 'cooked' dishes, I'll not feel cheated. One thing I like about a cookbook with a lot of recipes for dressings and sauces and condiments is that it adds a great source of information on which one can improvise (See Sally Schneider's new 'the improvisational cook'). This book is the perfect source for making a few dishes, then striking out on your own in making 'Cajun' style dishes without having to resort to Monsieur Prudhomme or Monsieur Lagasse. The book was very nicely organized and will stand up to some serious stints in the kitchen. I was also very happy to see tables of contents with all recipes listed at the beginning of each chapter. This is something all cookbooks (other than the monster references) should have. The only annoyance is that the recipes were not printed in the order they appeared in the table of contents. I have no clue why they were different. But, for a very reasonable list price, we have here an excellent source of basic, authentic 'Cajun' recipes with all the essentials and none of the frills.

This book showcases very real and actual old fashioned recipes. Very simple recipes. These are as old as 50 years. Use handy ingredients and taste great. Would recommend it to anyone wanting to replicate the older, simpler ways of Cajun cooking.

WOW ! Best Cajun recipes I have ever wanted.

My mom gave me this book several years ago and I misplaced it. Would be nice if it had pictures but I guess since I'm not 10 years old, I can manage. There are some really good recipes in the book and some that are not so good, but it is all about personal taste.

Download to continue reading...

Down-Home Cajun Cooking Favorites: The Best Authentic Cajun Recipes from Louisiana's Bayou Country, or How to Cook Traditional Cajun Meals as if You Were Born a Cajun Easy Louisiana Cookbook: Authentic Creole Cooking (Louisiana, Louisiana Cooking, Louisiana Cookbook, Louisiana Recipes, Cajun Recipes, Creole Recipes, Creole Cookbook Book 1) Cajun Cuisine: Authentic Cajun Recipes from Louisiana's Bayou Country Cajun and Creole Cuisine: Recipes from the Louisiana Bayou Bayou Farewell: The Rich Life and Tragic Death of Louisiana's Cajun Coast Bayou Farewell: The Rich Life and Tragic Death of Louisiana's Cajun Coast (Vintage Departures) Louisiana Cooking: Easy Cajun and Creole Recipes from Louisiana Best of the Best from Louisiana 2: Selected Recipes from Louisiana's Favorite Cookbooks (Best of the Best from Louisiana II) 50 Hikes in Massachusetts: A Year-Round Guide to Hikes and Walks from the Top of the Berkshires to the Tip of Cape Cod (50 Hikes in Louisiana: Walks, Hikes, & Backpacks in the Bayou State) 50 Hikes in the White Mountains: Hikes and Backpacking Trips in the High Peaks Region of New Hampshire (50 Hikes in Louisiana: Walks, Hikes, & Backpacks in the Bayou State) 50 Hikes in New Jersey: Walks, Hikes, and Backpacking Trips from the Kittatinnies to Cape May (50 Hikes in Louisiana: Walks, Hikes, & Backpacks in the Bayou State) Best Traditional Cajun and Creole Recipes from New Orleans: Louisiana Cooking That Isn't Just for Mardi Gras (Cooking Around the World Book 3) The Food of New Orleans: Authentic Recipes from the Big Easy [Cajun & Creole Cookbook, Over 80 Recipes] (Food of the World Cookbooks) Cajun Self-Taught : Learning to Speak the Cajun Language Cajun French-English/English-Cajun French Dictionary & Phrasebook (Hippocrene Dictionary & Phrasebooks) Best of the Best from Louisiana Cookbook: Selected Recipes from Louisiana's Favorite Cookbooks Czech Recipes: 48 of The Best Czech Recipes from a Real Czech Grandma: Authentic Czech Food All In a Comprehensive Czech Cookbook (Czech Recipes, Czech Cuisine, Czech Cookbook) Authentic Polish Cooking: 120 Mouthwatering Recipes, from Old-Country Staples to Exquisite Modern Cuisine Authentic Polish Cooking: 150 Mouthwatering Recipes, from Old-Country Staples to Exquisite Modern Cuisine Authentic Recipes from Jamaica: [Jamaican Cookbook, Over 80 Recipes] (Authentic Recipes Series)

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help