Dom Testa is an award-winning author, speaker, broadcaster, and philanthropist. For the past thirteen years he has hosted The Dom and Jane Show on Denver's Mix100, and with an audience of nearly a quarter-million people each day he's become an extended family member to generations of listeners. The Dom and Jane Show is a multiple winner for Best Morning Show by the Colorado Broadcasters Association. In 1999, inspired by volunteer work with local schools, he began writing what would become the beloved Galahad series. The first novel in the series, The Comet's Curse, burst onto the scene by winning an international grand prize from Writer's Digest Magazine and an EVVY Award for Best Young Adult Book. Published by the popular imprint Tor Teen, the Galahad series continues to garner critical acclaim and an adoring fan base of all ages. His love of writing led Dom to work with students, and to the creation of his foundation, The Big Brain Club. What began with writing workshops and assemblies has grown into a year-round schedule of professional presentations to student bodies and educators alike. Working in conjunction with The Big Brain Club, Dom donates free programs and services to middle schools. The message? Smart is Cool! In
