

The book was found

The Sittaford Mystery (BBC Audio Crime)

Synopsis

A blizzard has hit England. In the tiny village of Sittaford, on the fringes of Dartmoor, a party of six is gathered in Sittaford House, home of Captain Trevelyan. He has rented the house out for the winter and is staying in a nearby village. As evening draws in, a séance is proposed. The lights are lowered and the table turning begins: various questions are asked, and the guests are delighted when the table jerks and rocks, revealing the answers. But the game turns sour when the board spells out a terrible message: "TREVELYAN DEAD. As the horrified participants look on, the table begins to rock again, and fear grips the party as the sinister word appears: "MURDER. Is it a macabre joke, black magic, or the truth? And who would kill a man who doesn't have an enemy in the world? 2 CDs. 2 hrs 20 mins.

Book Information

Series: BBC Audio Crime

Audio CD: 1 pages

Publisher: BBC Books; Unabridged edition (July 19, 2004)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 0563525185

ISBN-13: 978-0563525189

Product Dimensions: 5.2 x 0.4 x 6 inches

Shipping Weight: 2.9 ounces (View shipping rates and policies)

Average Customer Review: 4.4 out of 5 stars 125 customer reviews

Best Sellers Rank: #763,785 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #22 in Books > Books on CD >

Authors, A-Z > (C) > Christie, Agatha #151 in Books > Books on CD > Radio Shows #512

in Books > Humor & Entertainment > Radio

Customer Reviews

"The Empress of the crime novel." Sunday Express --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

In a remote house in the middle of Dartmoor, six shadowy figures huddle around a table for a seance. Tension rises as the spirits spell out a chilling message: "Captain Trevelyan . . . dead . . . murder." Is this black magic or simply a macabre joke? The only way to be certain is to locate Captain Trevelyan. Unfortunately, his home is six miles away and, with snowdrifts blocking the roads, someone will have to make the journey on foot. . . . --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

The Sittaford Mystery by Dame Agatha Christie (1890-1976) was published in London in 1931. It is one of those Christie novels without the services of Miss Marple or Detective Hercule Poirot on duty to solve mystery. The Plot: "Mrs Willett a recent émigrée to England from her home in South Africa holds a party at Sittaford House. Present are her daughter Violet and four guests. A séance is held and a turning table spells out a spooky message reading, 'Trevelyan Dead-Murder.'": Major Burnaby an acquaintance of Captain Trevelyan calls the police and the doctor. They arrive at the Trevelyan estate called Hazelmoor. There they find the dead Trevelyan. The retired murder victim has been bludgeoned to death with a sandbag used to keep out winter drafts. All of this occurs during a terrific snowstorm that has shut down travel in the gloomy Dartmoor region of Great Britain. The police arrest Jim Pearson the nephew of the murder victim. Jim's fiancée is beautiful and brainy Emily Trefusis. Emily along with newspaper reporter Charles Enderby put on their thinking caps to solve the mystery. Emily is a fascinating woman reminding this reader of an older version of America's Nancy Drew. The plot is complex with many characters and there's a lot to sort out in typical Christie fashion. However, the explanation of the murder is simple and easily understood. This is one of the lesser known Christie novels but I found it to be a page turner. An excellent introduction to the delights of Agatha Christie!

Seeing Agatha Christie's portrait on my Kindle, I decided to give her a try - I had only read a couple of her books in my life, when I was a teen. She certainly kept me guessing, and I felt the book stood the test of time despite outdated words and phrases like "Hark!" and "the gay life in London." The book had some fun self-irony ("Like in books there ought to be some little incident that I should remember that would be a clue," said one of the characters). Another line reminded me of Dr. House from tv: "Everybody tells lies one way or another, and Mrs. Willett is perfectly entitled to do the same as everybody else."

Sometimes, only an Agatha Christie book can truly satisfy the desire for an old-fashioned who-dunnit, and this book does the trick. I'm so glad that Agatha Christie captured her era in her books from the language used ("a bit keen on money," "You can't say fairer than that, sir") to the statements of "electric lights", as electricity in homes was still a new concept for rural areas. This book was published in 1931 and it takes you back to that time period during a snowy winter when Captain Trevelyan is murdered in his rental home. It's a story that's easy to follow and keeps you involved along the way. Enjoy!

I like Agatha Christie so am maybe a bit biased. Her books have been entertaining without the excessive violence and sexual content many authors today use. Her stories are timeless though written many years ago and I find them always interesting not formulaic. While liking some better than others I've not found any I disliked.

As someone said, even Agatha Christie's "worst" books are better than many authors' writing today. I would agree. I own most of her books and both the Poirot and Marple short story collections. The Sittiford Mystery setting was minimal and bleak (cold, snowbound, moors, very small town). The severity of the setting was unrelieved by anything approaching charm or interest. The characters were even less engaging--in fact, the plot quickly became monotonous. Probably the only Christie book I've not been sorry to finish. I bought this to add to my collection. If you don't care about acquiring all her books, give this one a pass.

A small party decides to play a game of "turn tables" which spells out the name of Captain Trevelayn and says he is dead. His friend, Major Burnaby, sets out immediately to visit him. Trevelayn ends up dead and Inspector Narracot starts his investigation. When an arrest is made, the suspect's girlfriend, Emily, starts to investigate on her own. Can they figure out what really happened? Good story.

Captivating as always..... but didn't care for the ending. Just once I would like to be able to solve mysteries but there always seems to be some unique twist that no one would've been able to figure out no matter how hard they try. This one was very far fetched.

Download to continue reading...

The Sittaford Mystery (BBC Audio Crime) The Sittaford Mystery The Mystery Of Blue Train (BBC Audio Crime) Diamonds Are For Never: Crime Travelers Spy School Mystery Series Book 2 (Crime Travelers: a Lucas Benes Mystery) The Greetings from Somewhere Collection: Mysteries Around the World: The Mystery of the Gold Coin; The Mystery of the Mosaic; The Mystery of the Stolen Painting; The Mystery in the Forbidden City True Crime Stories Volume 7: 12 Shocking True Crime Murder Cases (True Crime Anthology) True Crime Stories: 3 True Crime Books Collection (True Crime Novels Anthology) True Crime Stories: 12 Shocking True Crime Murder Cases (True Crime Anthology) True Crime: Homicide & True Crime Stories of 2016 (Annual True Crime Anthology) The

Unexpected Guest & The Pale Horse (BBC Audio Crime) Cards On The Table (BBC Audio Crime) A Murder Is Announced (BBC Audio Crime) The Mysterious Affair At Styles (BBC Audio Crime) Hallowe'en Party (BBC Audio Crime) Appointment With Death (BBC Audio Crime) One, Two Buckle My Shoe (BBC Audio Crime) Lord Edgware Dies (BBC Audio Crime) Murder On The Links (BBC Audio Crime) The Adventure Of Christmas Pudding (BBC Audio Crime) Sleeping Murder (BBC Audio Crime)

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help